Delta Health Technologies Completes Strategic Acquisition of Siemens' Home Health Software Business

Altoona, PA – January 17, 2006 – Delta Health Technologies, LLC (“Delta”) announced today it has acquired the Home Health software business of Siemens Medical Solutions. Delta is a newly formed company whose members include key managers of the Siemens Home Health organization, shareholders of the founding company (known as Delta Computer Systems, Inc.), and local business leaders.

Delta Computer Systems, Inc. was originally founded in 1968. The business began providing information technology solutions to the Home Health industry in 1974. Delta Computer Systems, Inc. first partnered with, and then was acquired by Shared Medical Systems Corp., which in turn was acquired by Siemens AG in July 2000.

Delta Health Technologies, LLC has assumed full ownership of the Siemens Home Health business, retaining the product development, customer services, and product support teams. These veteran teams will build on Delta’s 31+ years of leadership in the Home Health industry.

Siemens remains committed to providing solutions for the entire continuum of care for its customers. Therefore, Delta Health Technologies will be a Siemens preferred partner for home health software.

To ensure a smooth transition and provide continuity for all Home Health customers, Keith Crownover, currently the senior director of Siemens home health business, will remain in this key role as Delta’s President.

“As an employee with more than 22 years of experience with this organization, I feel that I can speak on behalf of both our customers and our employees in expressing our excitement at once again being a freestanding organization that is focused exclusively on serving the Home Health industry,” said Keith Crownover.

“Baptist Trinity Home Care & Hospice is delighted to learn that Delta Health Technologies is going back to its operational agility and passion for service of a decade ago,” said Frank Feizkhah, Trinity Home Health’s CFO. “We began our affiliation with Delta Health Systems software in 1992 and stayed with them during the volatilities of IPS & PPS together with their acquisition by Siemens. We are happy they are going back to their core business, which is an exclusive focus on the Home Health industry.”
